

The FCC should not enact any new laws that would change the telephone privacy act we have in place in Indiana. We are not disturbed by telemarketing calls during dinner any longer and we want it to stay that way. The only thing the FCC will do is make it easier on the telemarketing scams to go on and interrupt families time to spend together without having to receive 7-10 calls a night only to find someone trying to sell something that we don't want. Please don't mess up the law we have now
